BloombergAnywhere | Software Support | Feedback Bloomberg.com Updated: New York, Sep 25 09:08 London, Sep 25 14:08

Tokyo, Sep 25 22:08

Enter Symbol

Search News GO

WOMEN'S FORUM FOR THE ECONOMY & SOCIETY

Register now!

HOME

■ NEWS

MARKET DATA

INVESTMENT TOOLS

QUOTE CHART NEWS

TV and RADIO

■ ABOUT BLOOMBERG ■ CAREERS

FINANCIAL NEWS

Bloomberg

100% in BONDS?

CONTACT U

news

Harper Gains in Quebec Vote; Liberals Lose Seat (Update1)

Exclusive

Worldwide

Regions

Africa

Asia Australia & New

Zealand

Canada

China Eastern Europe

Europe

France

Germany

Italy

Japan

Latin America

Middle East

U.K. & Ireland

U.S. Markets

Economy

Politics

Industries

Opinion

Sports

Muse

Spend Audio/Video

Reports

Bloomberg Markets Magazine

Special Report

By Theophilos Argitis

Sept. 18 (Bloomberg) -- Canadian Prime Minister Stephen Harper, facing an election as early as this year, was the clear winner yesterday as elections to fill three vacant Ouebec seats delivered blows to his two main rivals in the province.

Harper's Conservative Party won a seat held by the separatist Bloc Quebecois, and improved its share of the popular vote in another electoral district. The Liberal Party, Canada's largest opposition bloc, lost the Montreal seat of Outremont for just the second time in more than 70 years.

At stake may be the timing and outcome of the next federal election. Yesterday's showing may embolden the 48-year-old prime minister in a India & Pakistan Parliament where opposition parties hold the bulk of seats and can bring down the government. The Conservatives have been in power 20 months, two more than the average lifespan for minority governments in Canada.

> "This government will be able to sustain itself for at least another six months," said Nikita Nanos, president of SES Research, a polling company. "The government is usually the first casualty in by-elections but Stephen Harper showed he has traction in Quebec."

Opposition parties have an opportunity to bring down the government next month, when lawmakers vote on a policy agenda the government plans to introduce Oct. 16.

The Conservatives must make gains in Quebec to win a majority of seats in the House of Commons. The governing party is battling the Liberals for the federalist vote, while wooing Bloc loyalists with promises to curb Ottawa's power in the French-speaking province. The Conservatives now hold 11 of 75 districts in the province, Canada's second-most populous.

Conservatives Gain

"Stephen Harper is well on his way to becoming Quebeckers' choice as the federalist option," said Geoff Norquay, a lobbyist for Earnscliffe Strategy Group in Ottawa who worked as a spokesman for the Conservatives in 2005.

The Conservative candidate Denis Lebel won in Roberval-Lac-Saint-Jean, and the party increased their vote in Saint-Hyacinthe-Bagot -- two ridings centered in small, French- speaking towns. The Bloc's Eve-Mary Thai Thi Lac won in Saint- Hyacinthe.

More News

money.

BONDS

Order Now!

• Subprime Panic Freezes $40 Billion Principal of Canadian Commercial Paper

Learn how to build an all-bond portfolio.

The smart way to grow and protect your

- Molson's Coors Light Wins Nascar Beer Sponsorship Over Next Five Years
- General Motors, UAW Resumption of Talks May Mean Short Strike at Automaker

RESOURCES

Bloomberg TV

Bloomberg Radio

Bloomberg

Podcasts

The New Democratic Party candidate Thomas Mulcair won in the Montreal Bloomberg Press riding of Outremont, where non-French speakers are the majority. The Liberals had lost that seat only once since 1935. The loss was a setback for leader Stephane Dion, 51, in his biggest test since he won the party's top job last December. Dion may face questions within the party about his ability to lead the Liberals to victory, according to Nanos.

``The biggest challenge Dion has to face now is within his own party," Nanos

More Transfers

Harper raised transfers to Quebec in his last budget by C$2.3 billion ($2.24 billion). The Conservatives also won passage last year of a motion recognizing Quebec as a nation within Canada, and pledged to reduce federal interference in provincial affairs.

Dion, who called the loss ``a difficult moment" for his party, said separatists were the biggest losers, with the Bloc Quebecois losing a seat it had held since 1993.

"We must be very proud that the parties that believe in Canada are stronger," Dion told supporters, in remarks broadcast by Radio-Canada television.

To contact the reporter on this story: Theophilos Argitis in Ottawa at targitis@bloomberg.net.

Last Updated: September 18, 2007 10:25 EDT

Email this article Printer friendly format Advertisement: You've worked, you've saved, now PROTECT your nest egg.!

Spensored links

Funds Canada

Take Investing & Cash Management To The Next Level. E\*TRADE  $Complete^{\mathsf{TM}}$ www.etrade.ca

Quebec genealogy database

Database of Quebec marriages (french-canadians & others)

Where to Retire In Canada

Get The Where To Retire Checklist Available Only on 50plus.com 50plus.com/Retire-In-Canada

Alberta's Oil Sands

New report: Investing in the oil reserve 8 times bigger than Saudi's www.investmentu.com/OilSands_Rpt

Bloomberg.com NEWS | MARKET DATA | INVESTMENT TOOLS | TV AND RADIO | ABOUT BLOOMBERG | CAREERS | CONTACT US | LOG IN/REGISTER

2007 BLOOMBERG L.P. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED. Terms of Service | Privacy Policy | Trademarks | Site Map | Help | Feedback | Advertising |