A Tough Choice

Members of Parliament who stand vehemently in favour of same sex marriage may have a hard choice to make for the next federal election. According to a new poll, they could pay a political price if they take a firm position.

The survey found 60 per cent of Canadians who oppose gay wedlock would vote against M.P.s who back any change to the existing laws.

At the same time, the poll found that 63 percent of those who support same sex marriage would not take it out on their M.P. at the ballot box if they oppose same sex marriage.

Nationally, the poll by S.E.S. Research Canada suggests 47 per cent of Canadians support same-sex marriage, and 44 per cent are opposed.

Provincially, support for same-sex marriage is highest in Quebec and B.C., and lowest in Alberta.
