

SECTIONSHomeNewsSportsAutomotiveFind a business

Type or Name

City

Province

FINDFind A PersonPowered by
SUPERPAGES.ca
Your Phone Book OnlineBusinessEntertainmentClassifiedsOPINION*EditorialCrossing dangersColumnists' PageRead all columnsEditorial Cartoon*NEWS

Tue, April 27, 2004

PM's support dropsMARIA MCCLINTOCK, SUN OTTAWA BUREAU

OTTAWA -- A rapidly declining number of Canadians believe Paul Martin would make the best prime minister and an increasing number view his government's performance as poor, an SES/Sun Media poll shows. Martin's poor showing among the 1,000 Canadians polled between April 20 and 25 is directly related to the sponsorship scandal, according to SES president Nik Nanos.

The poll comes as the PM hosted a private dinner with his cabinet ministers at 24 Sussex Drive last night to get their advice about the timing of an election. The poll numbers show 33% of Canadians think Martin would make the best PM - a drop of 17 points since February.

Asked about Martin's overall performance, 31% said it was poor or somewhat poor, compared to 13% in February.

SES/Sun survey shows scandals taking toll as PM weighs election options. (CP file photo)

Kerry Diotte
Jason Swist's swift rust
twist

Fred Curatolo
Letters
Read today's letters

RELATED ON CANOE

CNEWS
MONEY
C*HEALTH

SLAM! Sports
JAM! Showbiz
LIFEWISE

FAVES

Comics
Lotteries
Crossword
Horoscopes
TV Listings
Weather
Tech News

Oilers
Eskimos
Trappers
Max Haines
Classifieds
Personals

NEWSPAPERS/MAGAZINES

Sun Media Newspapers

FEEDBACK & SERVICES

Letters to the Editor
Send a letter
About the SUN
Loyal to Edmonton

Classifieds
Information on
Classified ads

Contact the Sun
E-mail directory
Circulation
Circulation dept.

Advertising
Information on
Display advertising

When asked to rank Conservative Leader Stephen Harper, 16% of those surveyed said he'd make the best PM - double the number who chose him in February.

NDP Leader Jack Layton was the choice of only 7%, an increase of only 2%.

One of the most significant findings shows 11% of people thought none of the party leaders would make a good prime minister, and another 31% were undecided.

"What the numbers speak to is volatility and when we see the number of undecided votes increase ... that's basically a bit of a thermometer reading of how volatile the situation is," Nanos said.

The poll is accurate within plus or minus 3.1%, 19 times out of 20.

Meanwhile, a separate SES/CPAC poll conducted during the same period shows 60% of Canadians are dissatisfied with Martin's handling of the sponsorship scandal.

"Canadians have ... gotten a better indicator of what type of performance to expect from Paul Martin, and this clearly shows he's got a problem," Nanos said.

Senior government officials told Sun Media yesterday the PM hasn't decided on the date for the election and told his ministers last night to be prepared to govern on his five key priorities, including health care and cities, if he decides to hold off calling an election.

Several cabinet ministers said they're ready to hit the campaign trail now.

Immigration Minister Judy Sgro wouldn't reveal when she wants an election call.

"Tonight will give us an opportunity as cabinet members to look at all sides of the issue and give the prime minister some advice, and then he will make his decision," Sgro said yesterday.

"I'm ready to go whenever he calls it."

Human Resources Minister Joe Volpe said he's "very comfortable" to go to the polls this spring.

PRINTER-FRIENDLY VERSION

E-MAIL TO A FRIEND